“A Healing Presence”

In a vow to the Radiant Healing Buddha the practitioner says, “I will heal my presence”. In the Gospels Jesus says you can heal if you have deep trust. Both of these qualities are aspects of a soulful person. In modern medicine we put our trust in knowledge, technique and instruments. We don't seem to be aware of how important our mere presence is. We also don't appreciate enough the power of healing space and healing words. In this presentation, Thomas Moore Explores the soul of healing and the soul of the healer—how to prepare for and how to practice soul-based medicine. It is a step beyond a person-centered approach, as it embraces every aspect of the encounter with a patient and of a medical institution. What could a soulful hospital and medical center look like, and how would a soulful practitioner speak, listen and relate?

“The Ageless Soul”

Moore reveals a fresh, optimistic, and rewarding path toward aging, one that need not be feared, but rather embraced and cherished. In Moore's view, aging is the process by which one becomes a more distinctive, complex, fulfilled, loving and connected person.

Using examples from his practice as a psychotherapist and teacher who lectures widely on the soul of medicine and spirituality, Moore argues for a new vision of aging; as a dramatic series of initiations, rather than a diminishing experience, one that each of us has the tools—experience, maturity, fulfillment—to live out.

The event is FREE and open to the public.
